

ENGL 1301 sec. 57 W Composition I Syllabus

Fall 2017; Credit 3

Meeting Days/Times: Tuesday and Thursday 11:00 am-12:20 pm CFS 101
Instructor: Dr. Dowdey
Office: EV 410
Contact Information: dowdey@shsu.edu 936-294-4217
Office Hours: 10-11 am and 2-3 pm on Tuesdays; 10-11 am on Thursdays. Other times by appointment.

Course Description

ENGL 1301, Composition I, is the basic study in English diction, sentence structure, and rhetoric with emphasis on the development of a thesis or claim. More specifically, the course involves the study of skills and methods used in writing at the university level, with the focus on writing academic texts and incorporating appropriate documentation. As the first half of a two-semester sequence that constitutes first-year composition at SHSU, ENGL 1301 is designed to introduce students to the nature of writing for academic purposes so that they will be able to develop ideas through invention and express them clearly and persuasively. The course builds a solid framework for students' understanding of how reading and writing operate concurrently in academic contexts. Learning the rules and conventions of Standard American English is an essential part of learning to write competently in a university setting.

Aims and Outcomes

Freshman composition is a core requirement because writing well is an essential part of a university education. By the end of ENGL 1301, students will be able to develop a thesis or claim, in a discernible and effective order, and demonstrate that they have a command of the conventions of written English appropriate to the freshman level in college. The course includes a review of usage and grammatical terminology as they relate to the writing process. The main aims of ENGL 1301 are (1) to strengthen students' ability to read a variety of texts representing several rhetorical types and (2), through this reading component, to improve their writing skills, oral expression, and visual literacy. Students will also learn to work with peers to review their own writing and the writing of others. They will learn to draft and revise their own texts for content and organization of thought, as well as for editing. Thorough revision includes the re-visioning of the text, its structure, its contents, its visual effect, and how appropriately it meets the needs of its intended audience and purpose. Discussions, peer reviews, and oral critique will develop students' competence in clear verbal expression.

Course Objectives

Upon completion of ENGL 1301 students will be able to

- analyze audience, purpose, and context,
- respond appropriately to different rhetorical situations and constraints,
- read analytically and think critically, with the aim of solving problems through the development of exposition and argument,
- build a solid connection between reading and writing, with the emphasis on understanding texts, oral, written, and visual,
- use the modified process method (prewriting, writing, and rewriting) to develop well-organized, formal texts in support of a thesis or claim,
- evaluate and critique others' writing, including that of their peers, logically and constructively,
- based on careful listening, give constructive verbal criticism to their peers' oral team presentations,
- work in collaboration to improve their written and oral expression through revision and editing,
- identify persuasive appeals in written, oral, and visual texts,
- use the MLA citation method for documenting basic, fundamental research tasks,
- demonstrate the conventions of Standard American English grammar and appropriate mechanics across various genres and writing situations.

Textbooks and Apps

Required Texts:

- (1) Glenn Cheryl and Loretta Gray. The Hodges Harbrace Handbook. 19th ed. Boston: Cengage Learning, 2017. ISBN: 978-1-305-67644-2 (student edition)
- (2) Jo Ray McCuen-Metherell and Anthony C. Winkler. Readings for Writers. 15th ed. Boston: Cengage Learning, 2016. ISBN-13: 978-1-337-28104-1 (student edition)
- (3) Socratic app. Available free from the App Store, Google Play, or Amazon Apps
- (4) A dictionary app such as Dictionary.com, Dictionary-Merriam Webster, or Oxford Dictionary of English All available free from the App Store, Google Play, or Amazon Apps

Attendance

Attendance is mandatory for successful completion of this course. Even a moderate number of absences may seriously jeopardize your ability to learn the material and pass the course.

Because much of our work will build on material previously completed and will include team and group interaction, you should make every effort to attend class and be on time. Students must be in the classroom for the entire time in order to receive full credit for attendance. Your attendance is expected and will be documented. Department policy is that up to three hours of absence will receive no penalty. This translates into three absences for the MWF class and two absences for the TuTh class (i.e., one full week for both). Plan this time carefully, because any absence beyond the three hours will result in a 2 percentage-point deduction from your end-of-semester grade for each absence.

Class activities and assignments (quizzes and exercises) cannot be made up. If you have missed a class activity or assignment, you will not be allowed to retake it at a later time.

Should an emergency arise (such as a serious illness or death in the family) please report your absences through the Dean of Students. His office will assist you in gathering the required documentation and make sure that all your professors are made aware of the circumstances. The instructor will decide whether the documented circumstances qualify as an emergency or not.

If you are unable to attend a class, you must make sure that you are prepared for the session when you return. Much of what you need to know in order to be prepared will be on the calendar, but unanticipated events can occur during classes that may change the calendar. Contact a classmate to see what unanticipated assignments, discussions, etc., you might have missed; this will help ensure that you are not surprised when the class is doing something for which you are not prepared.

Grading Plan

This is a “W” course, which means that at least 50 percent of your course grade will derive from writing activities designed to help you master course objectives. Writing in this course is one of the tools your instructor will use to help you learn course material. Some writing activities will require you to draft and revise your work, with or without instructor feedback. Other assignments may not receive a grade but are designed to assist you in critical reflection of the course material. You should approach writing in this course as a tool to use as part of your learning as well as a tool your instructor will use to assess your level of learning.

Course requirements:

Formal essays (5 x 10%)	50%
Oral team presentation.....	5%
Midterm exam.....	5%
Usage quizzes.....	10%
Reading quizzes.....	10%
Final exam.....	10%
Additional components (instructors choose from the following types; the purpose of all these exercises is to display an understanding of purpose, task, and audience in writing):
Discussion board, blog, or journal postings / summary or response papers / peer workshop responses / integrating source materials into writing / writing efficient and appropriate informative e-mail messages	10%

Total 100%

Explanation of assignments

Formal essays. The bulk of your grade will come from your ability to create formal written compositions through invention, organization, drafting, revision, and editing. Each of the five (5) essays will include time spent in various stages of the writing process. Essays will be drafted, will go through guided peer-editing, and will be revised by the original author before the instructor collects the paper for evaluation and assessment. All formal assignments must include all preliminary work in order for you to get credit for the paper. The five essays will represent a variety of writing styles and strategies which are designed to help you develop your college-level writing skills. One essay (narration) will be written entirely in class. Together, the formal essays will count as fifty (50) percent of the course grade, i.e., each will be worth ten (10) percent. The essays will exemplify the following writing methods:

- (1) Narration (This writing activity is to be done in class.)
- (2) Exposition and exemplification
- (3) Comparison and Contrast
- (4) Argument and Persuasion
- (5) Division or Classification

Oral team presentation. According to new established guidelines, every student must participate in an oral team activity, which ties together with the assigned readings of the week in the Readings for Writers. By week 5, teams of 3-4 students will be formed, and presentation dates will be assigned by the instructor. In collaboration, members of the team will prepare a 10-minute oral presentation, which incorporates visual and textual materials. The presentations will take place throughout the remainder of the semester. The focus will be on the writing strategies in the readings, questions on meaning, issues on language, and connections with suitable biographical information about the author and the author's purpose of writing the text in its historical and social context. The presentation will be followed by a brief (5 min.) critique from the class as a whole. This team presentation counts as five (5) percent of the semester grade. Also during the Argument and Persuasion section, students will participate in a classroom debate.

Midterm exam (in-class). This exam counts as five (5) percent of the grade.

Usage quizzes. These activities form ten (10) percent of the grade. Because the intent of ENGL 1301 is to develop and practice writing skills that are academically and professionally essential, weekly attention will be given to grammatical and usage principles, such as

- Correct use of the principal parts of verbs
- Agreement of subject and verb
- Agreement of pronoun and antecedent
- Correct use of pronoun form
- Correct choice between adjective and adverb
- Avoidance of sentence fragments
- Avoidance of run-together sentences and comma splices

Sentence structure and emphasis
Correct punctuation
Correct citation form and integration of sources

Reading quizzes. These assignments form ten (10) percent of the course grade. Short quizzes (5-10 minutes of class time) will be given based on the readings in the Readings for Writers. The readings illustrate the required methods. The purpose of the quizzes is to ensure that the students have done the readings, comprehended their meaning, and are able to analyze and synthesize the content.

Peer workshop responses. These assignments form ten (10) percent of the course grade. As part of your writing you will learn to critique the writing of others and of your peers. Time will be spent in class learning how to provide constructive feedback and response to a variety of writing samples. In order to turn your final paper in for grading, you must receive two peer evaluations and provide two evaluations for your peers. Your written evaluations to your peers will also be assessed and computed as part of your final course grade. In addition, you will be required to provide verbal feedback to your classmates' oral presentations. If you are absent on a day that peer workshops are being held or oral presentations being given, you will not be able to make up these grades.

Departmental final exam. Students will take a final exam, based on usage and mechanics (basic editing skills). The final is an objective test, which will be administered (designed and scored) centrally by the Department of English. Your instructor does not know the detailed content of the exam in advance. The final comprises ten (10) percent of the grade.

Classroom Policies

Individual and group responsibility

During the semester you will be working in teams whose responsibility will be to read and provide constructive criticism on each member's written work and at times create a document (such as an oral team presentation) as a team. Because your input is essential to the success of the entire team, your attendance is required. Failure to work as part of the collaborative team will mean that you do not have the proper background to do the assignment and no grade will be recorded.

If you are to bring a draft of an assignment, make sure you are clear about its purpose and have that draft with you. Do not come to class without the needed materials, including your book and your drafts. You must have prepared the proper materials by the calendar deadline in order to be able to participate and get the full benefit of the class interaction. Failure to work as part of a classroom cooperative will jeopardize your individual grade.

Assignments

Because writing is a process and involves various stages, students are expected to work through projects in a step-by-step fashion and turn in all of these steps when the assignments are due. If any step in the process of a particular assignment is missing or completed unsatisfactorily, the final paper will not be accepted.

Your instructor may require that you submit all of your essays to a plagiarism detecting service such as turnitin.com. Your enrolling in the course and electing to stay in that section constitutes your agreeing to submit your work as your instructor requires.

Smart phone and computer use

It will be assumed that you are using your phone or computer for class work and are willing to show that you are if asked. If you are not using them for class work, you will be asked to leave the classroom and counted as absent for the day. Inform the instructor if you anticipate receiving emergency information during class time.

University Policies

Academic Honesty

English Department policy states that a paper or assignment, which evidence can support as plagiarized or in any manner not the result of a student's own intellectual endeavors, will receive zero points. The second offense will result in failure of the course and possible university disciplinary action. Submitting your own previously written work for a current assignment or submitting an assignment in more than one class without the prior permission of the instructors is also considered academically dishonest. For information on plagiarism and other Classroom Rules of Conduct, see the following site: <http://www.shsu.edu/students/guide>.

Americans with Disabilities Act

It is the policy of Sam Houston State University that individuals otherwise qualified shall not be excluded, solely by reason of their disability, from participation in any academic program of the university. Further, they shall not be denied the benefits of these programs nor shall they be subjected to discrimination.

Students with disabilities that might affect their academic performance should register with the Office of Services for Students with Disabilities (SSD) located in the Lee Drain Annex (telephone 936.294.3512, TDD 936.294.3786, and email disability@shsu.edu). They should then make arrangements with their individual instructors so that appropriate strategies can be considered and helpful procedures can be developed to ensure that participation and achievement opportunities are not impaired. All disclosures of disabilities will be kept strictly confidential. NOTE: No accommodation can be made until the student registers with the Services for Students with Disabilities.

Religious Holy Days

Section 51.911(b) of the Texas Education Code requires that an institution of higher education excuse a student from attending classes or other required activities, including examinations, for the observance of a religious holy day, including travel for that purpose. A student whose absence is excused under this subsection may not be penalized for that absence and shall be allowed to take an examination or complete an assignment from which the student is excused within a reasonable time after the absence. "Religious holy day" means a holy day observed by a religion whose places of worship are exempt from property taxation under Section 11.20, Tax Code.

Visitors in the Classroom

Unannounced visitors to class must present a current, official SHSU identification card to be permitted into the classroom. They must not present a disruption to the class by their attendance. If the visitor is not a registered student, it is at the instructor's discretion whether or not the visitor will be allowed to remain in the classroom. This policy is not intended to discourage the occasional visiting of classes by responsible persons. Obviously, however, the visiting of a particular class should be occasional and not regular, and it should in no way constitute interference with registered members of the class or the educational process. Let the instructor know before class if someone will be accompanying you to class.

Instructor Evaluations

Students will be asked to complete a course/instructor evaluation form toward the end of the semester.

COURSE SCHEDULE*

NOTE: The syllabus/course schedule is tentative and subject to change.

Abbreviations: RFW = Readings for Writers
 HHH = Hodges Harbrace Handbook

Date	Topic	Reading(s)	Notes and Due Dates
WEEK 1 August 24	Introduction to the course. Distribution of the syllabus. Overview of the course.	N/A	Late registration open.
WEEK 2 August 29 August 31	Hurricane Harvey		Aug. 30: Last day to register and to process schedule changes online.
WEEK 3 September 5 September 7	In class writing Critical Reading Rhetoric	RFW Chapter 1 &2 HHH Chapter 31	Sept. 4: Labor Day, holiday for students and faculty. Sept. 8: 12th class day. Last day to drop without a "Q" and receive 100% refund and to submit degree applications.
WEEK 4 September 12 September 14	Narrative Discuss narratives Narrative assignment	RWF Chapter 4 Chapter 8 pages 167-176 RWF Chapter 8 pages 176-189
WEEK 5 September 19 September 21	Narrative Peer review Oral presentations	HHH Chapter 33 e,f, g	September 19 in class writing of narrative essay September 21 peer work on narrative essay; assigned to oral presentation team
WEEK 6 September 26 September 28	Conventions of grammar Illustration/Exemplification	HHH Chapter 1 and others assigned RFW Chapter 11

The rest of the schedule will be provided at a later date.