Course Description

This course explores forensic specialties in the criminal justice system. The course is intended to introduce non-science majors to Forensic Science disciplines and techniques. The ways in which the physical and social sciences are applied to law, criminal investigation, and the administration of justice will be addressed. Course topics include the analysis of different types of physical evidence including: fingerprints, shoe and tire impression, tool marks, drugs and biological fluids (DNA). Crime scene investigation, scientific expert testimony, medico-legal death investigation and current events involving forensic science will also be covered. Credits: 3.

Course Objectives:

1. To develop an understanding of the definition of Forensic Science -- with awareness of academic, professional, and pop cultural perspectives.
2. To explore the nexus between science and law.
3. To offer an overview of the range of disciplines, specialty areas, and applications generally included under the heading of Forensic Science.
4. To foster an informed understanding of scientific principles, terminology, and technical advances crucial to the different areas of Forensic Science.
5. To explore issues of ethics and morality at the interface of Criminal Justice and Forensic Science.
6. To provide foundation for informed consumption of news media, current events and scientific discourse as they relate to Forensic Science, Law and Criminal Justice.
7. To encourage and provide opportunity to articulate learned material via exams, exercises and/or class discussion.

Course Requirements

There is one required textbook for this online course: Criminalistics: An Introduction to Forensic Science by Richard Saferstein. This class will be conducted through SHSU online blackboard. The lectures will be posted online within each unit along with chapter topics, learning objectives, question/answer segment, and other learning resources. It is a self-paced online course. Course materials will be released in unit blocks. These will be accessible the night before the start of a new unit. Students are responsible for accessing course documents, and taking quizzes and exams in the Blackboard system. If you have any questions on the material, quizzes, exam, homework, etc., please send them via email to ett006@shsu.edu.

Attendance Policy

This is an online course; no class meeting times are scheduled. However, this is an intensive online course. If you even THINK you are a procrastinator, then this online course is NOT for you. A student's willingness or desire to learn is what actually makes the eLearning experience work.

In this course you will be expected to be self-paced with a suggested study schedule and timing the taking of quizzes and exams. The schedule has been developed to help you complete the course requirements and meet the course objectives. This online course was developed with non-traditional students in mind, i.e., mature students and those unable or those who find it difficult to come to campus to take the course in a classroom setting. If you are a student who does not typically work ahead of schedule in anticipation of interruptions, then again, this course is NOT for you. That being said, this course allows you the flexibility to manage your time, resources and assessments within each 3-4 week unit.

Grading Policy

There will be 11 on-line quizzes (15%), 4 Exams (60%), and a Final Exam (25%) in this course.
