REQUIRED MATERIALS:

Text: This course uses the McGraw-Hill CONNECT™ learning management system. You must register for this course in the CONNECT™ system and purchase an access code that allows you to use the CONNECT™ system. All course work is accomplished using CONNECT™. An electronic textbook comes with your purchase and registration for the course in CONNECT™. The title of that book is: Managerial Accounting for Managers, 4th Edition by Eric Noreen, Peter Brewer and Ray Garrison, published by McGraw-Hill.

You can find instructions for purchasing your access code and electronic textbook for CONNECT™ in the Blackboard section for this class under the Course Materials and Registration content area. As explained in those instructions, you must purchase a new access code for CONNECT™ for this specific course; you cannot use a code that has been used in a prior course or by another student. As per the instructions in Blackboard, you may buy a code card from the bookstore or purchase a code online directly from McGraw-Hill. There is also an option to begin CONNECT™ assignments for this course on a trial basis at no charge; however, be sure to purchase access before the trial period expires or McGraw-Hill will erase any work completed during the trial period.

PLEASE NOTE: This course in the CONNECT™ system does not go “live” until one week before the first class day. That means that you cannot purchase your CONNECT™ access code directly from McGraw-Hill until one week before the first class day. It also means that if you purchase an access code from a bookstore, you cannot register for the class within CONNECT™ until one week before the first class day.

Only the electronic version of the textbook is required for this online course, which is available under the Library tab at the upper left of the CONNECT™ course assignment page. However, as part of the registration process in CONNECT™ you can elect to purchase a three-hole, notebook version of the textbook that will be mailed to you. This notebook version is totally optional and not required for the course. This print version costs much less than the hard-cover version of the text.

COURSE INFORMATION:

CONNECTTM Registration: To register in the correct CONNECTTM section, go to the registration site listed in the CONNECTTM Registration Instructions posted in Blackboard. If you have ordered through the mail and have not yet received your access code, you can start your assignments immediately through McGraw-Hill's instant Courtesy License. Be aware, however, that McGraw-Hill will delete your grades if you do not upgrade to licensed status during the courtesy period.

Once you're registered in the class, access CONNECT directly at <http://connect.mcgraw-hill.com>

Chapter Assignments: We cover ten chapters of the text: Chapters 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 9, 10, 11, and Appendix A. Chapter 1 is a review chapter, and the bonus assignment for Chapter 1 is optional.

All assignments are through McGraw-Hill's CONNECTTM system. Each chapter includes a set of video lectures, a homework assignment, and a timed chapter quiz. An optional practice assignment is also provided for study and review purposes only; no credit is awarded for practice assignments.

Assignments are submitted for grading automatically at the due date. Due dates are displayed on the class schedule posted on Blackboard and on the CONNECTTM Assignment Page (click on "Expand All"). No extensions or make up work for missed assignments can be given; past due assignments are recorded as grades of zero.

Video Lecture Assignments: Each chapter includes several (three to nine) videos explaining the material and then testing your understanding with Knowledge Checks. Each Knowledge Check consists of multiple choice and/or "drag and drop" questions and the number of points you receive for the lectures depends on your performance on the Knowledge Checks. Please note that CONNECTTM will not award any credit for a lecture assignment unless and until every page of the video has been visited.

With some devices, answers to lecture questions may not be recorded and points awarded properly; if that occurs, re-work the assignment using a different browser. If you continue to encounter problems with the Knowledge Check assignments, please call CONNECTTM Technical Support at 800-331-5094. They can best address any computer compatibility issues you may be having.

Homework Assignments: Homework assignments are worth five points; homework assignments are not timed. Up until the due date, you are allowed unlimited attempts per homework assignment and solutions become available as soon as the first attempt is submitted.

Multiple Attempts: Please note that for assignments that are submitted more than once (lectures and homework), CONNECTTM will display the AVERAGE score during the semester; however, at the end of the semester when CONNECTTM points are downloaded to Blackboard, only the HIGHEST score for each assignment is used in calculating final grades.

Quiz and Exam Policy: Each student is allowed one timed attempt to complete each quiz and exam. Please be advised that the timer cannot be paused once the assignment has been opened, nor can the attempt be extended past the deadline. Just as in a classroom setting, a student must complete each timed assignment once it is begun.

Grades: During the course students accumulate points in the CONNECTTM system for completed lectures, homework and quizzes. At the end of the semester, CONNECTTM points will be downloaded into Blackboard and official grades posted on Blackboard, not on CONNECTTM.

End of Course: The course is completed as of the date published in the class schedule, or when a student submits the Final Exam, whichever is earlier.
