PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Professor (tenured) Sam Houston State University, Department of Counselor Education (2014 to present). Teach courses at the masters level in Clinical Mental Health Counseling (CACREP accredited).

Professor (tenured) Stephen F. Austin State University, Department of Human Services (2004 to 2014). Affiliated primarily with the masters program in Clinical Mental Health Counseling (CACREP accredited) and support the Ph.D. program in School Psychology program teaching their counseling component courses. Taught courses in theories of counseling, child and adolescent therapy, advanced child and adolescent therapy, family therapy, advanced family therapy, ethics, and practica at master and doctoral levels. Provided leadership for CACREP reaccreditation of M.A. in School Counseling and Community Counseling (now Clinical Mental Health Counseling) in 2008.

Director of Training, Texas A&M University (2002-2004), Department of Educational Psychology. Provided leadership for the doctoral program in counseling psychology, including course scheduling, student interview/application process, yearly review of student progress, internship application process, and program development. In addition, I provided the leadership for a successful American Psychological Association re-accreditation of the program in 2004.

Associate Professor (Tenured), Texas A&M University, Department of Educational Psychology. Counseling Psychology Program (1994-2004). Taught both doctoral and master's counseling courses; chaired dissertations committees in counseling psychology (13); served on over 40 counseling psychology dissertation committees; served on 20 dissertation committees in the Clinical Psychology program; served on 3 dissertation committees in School Psychology.

Coordinator of the Masters Counseling Program, Texas A&M University (1994-2004). Provided leadership in the counseling program including recruiting, admission process, and program development.

Director, Counseling and Assessment Clinic, Department of Educational Psychology, Texas A&M University (1996 to 1999). Directed the clinic with 20 and 25 masters and doctoral students each semester in Counseling, Counseling Psychology, and School Psychology. Provided services to between 200 to 300 client cases per year. The clinic served a diverse community population in the greater Bryan/College Station area as well as some university students. I had oversight and primary responsibility for all operations in the Clinic, including budgetary issues, hiring, and supervision of staff (fulltime receptionist/accountant, part-time work study students, and 4-7 fulltime graduate assistants), grants and contracts, and some supervision for counseling and assessment cases. In addition to providing services to the community, the Clinic contracted with Texas A&M University ($50,000/year for two years) to provide all assessments for students seeking assistants through the office of disabilities for a learning disability. Further, I provided oversight and supervision of graduate counseling students who provided counseling services for a Texas Department of Health and Human Services/Child Protective Services contract (approximately $25,100/year) for abused children and their families. Activities included counseling, expert testimony, and staffings with CPS staff, district attorney, and judges. The Clinic was typically given two full-time graduate assistants from the department and then through grants and contracts, I was able to fund from two to five additional GA's per year.

Executive Director, Counseling and Assessment Clinic, Department of Educational Psychology, Texas A&M University (1995-1996). Provided oversight of non-tenured director of the Clinic. Daily meetings with the director as well as involvement in decision-making regarding the budget and personnel issues.

Associate Professor of Counseling (Tenured), Department of Counseling and Special Education, Stephen F. Austin State University, Nacogdoches, TX (1989-1994). Taught wide range of masters counseling courses.

Coordinator of Community Counseling Program, Department of Counseling and Special Education, Stephen F. Austin State University, Nacogdoches, TX (1990-1994). Provided leadership for the community counseling program including the initial CACREP accreditation process and program development for M.A. in Community Counseling.

Director of Counseling Clinic. Department of Counseling and Special Education Stephen F. Austin State University (1991-1992). Established and directed the departments' community based Counseling Clinic for training masters level counseling students. My activities revolved largely around starting up the clinic.

Associate Professor of Counseling (Tenured), University of Louisiana Monroe, Monroe, LA, (1985-1989). Marriage and Family Therapy and Community Counseling Programs. Taught courses and provided leadership for the masters program in Marriage and Family Therapy. I was instrumental in the program receiving their initial accreditation by AAMFT and CACREP accreditation for the community counseling program.

Clinical Director, Marriage and Family Counseling Center, University of Louisiana Monroe, Monroe, LA (1986-1989). Had primary responsibility for oversight of staff (fulltime receptionist and two graduate assistants) and clinic operations. The clinic served a diverse greater Monroe area community and was a training clinic affiliated with the masters program in Marriage and Family Therapy.

Assistant Professor of Counseling and Coordinator, Counseling Program, Sul Ross State University, Alpine, TX, (1981-1983). Taught wide range of masters counseling courses.

Contracted Counseling, Lewisville Independent School District, Special Education (1980-1981).

Teacher/Counselor, Longview Academy. Taught English, Biology, and Psychology, (1976-1978).

Teacher, Foster Jr. High, Longview Texas. Taught English, (1975-1976).

Major Research Projects

Project Director, Treatment Outcome Study for Abused Women and their Children: An Integrated Trauma-Based Treatment Model of Intervention (2008 to present).

An on-going research project working with women who are abused by their partners and their children who were exposed to the parental violence and/or maltreated. The intervention model includes Trauma-Focused CBT/Brief Time-Limited Dynamic psychotherapy for the women and TF-CBT/Parent-Child Interactional Therapy to enhance parent-child attachment and to teach effective parenting skills based on social cognitive theory. The project is funded by the Stephen F. Austin State University Office of Research and Sponsored Program.

An off-shoot of the above program is an ongoing research project comparing women who have histories of childhood abuse (sexual and physical) across treatment with women in treatment for anxiety and/or depression who do not have histories of abuse. I am examining attachment patterns, interpersonal problems, trauma symptoms, the therapeutic alliance, and general symptoms distress at three points across the treatment process. Based on this project, we have had several regional and national presentations as well as several manuscripts currently under review

Migrant Clinicians Network Domestic Violence Program (2001-2004).

I was contracted to development assessment and survey materials for examining the frequency of domestic violence among Mexican migrant farm workers ($n = 298$). Further, I assisted in developing a domestic violence prevention program and methodology for assessing pre to post-treatment change ($n = 82$). Finally, I had the primary responsibility for analysis of data. I am a co-author on an article based on this project, Familias con Voz: Community Survey Results from an Intimate Partner Violence (IPV) Prevention Project with Migrant Workers. This project was funded by the U. S. Department of Health and Human Services, Administration for Children and Families, Office of Community Services.

Project Director, Service Contract with Brazos County Parole Office (1995 to 2005).

Provided psychological assessments and weekly group treatment for men and women on probation for domestic violence (men and women) provided by counseling psychology doctoral students. Provide child and family therapy when appropriate. In addition, the project was an ongoing research endeavor that included between 5 and 8 doctoral students at any given time. I supervised students on the team who provided assessments and counseling. Further, we collected data on abuser profiles, intervention effectiveness, treatment model development, and treatment comparison studies. We employed a combination of CBT, Solution Focused Therapy, and brief dynamic therapy. Much of this data resulted in published articles, presentations at state, regional, and national conventions, and dissertations (see sections in vita on publications, presentations, and chaired dissertations). The contract funded two graduate assistants as well as costs for MMPI-2 and MCMI-III materials and scoring. The contract generated $165,200.00 over a 9-year period.

Co-Project Director, School Families Project (1994-2000). This project involved working with a local middle school in Bryan, Texas to establish support and prevention groups with students. The groups were conducted during student advisory periods and led by teachers, school counselors, and Texas A&M University students. Between 200 and 300 children participated each fall and spring semester. Along with two graduate students and another faculty member, we conducted training for group leaders, organized the meeting schedules, and conducted research on the programs effectiveness. The project resulted in numerous presentations and one publication. The project was funded by the Hogg Foundation (University of Texas) from 1993 to 1998 ($275,000.00). Although I had no involvement in writing the original grant, I assisted in writing grant renewals.

Family of Origin Experiences of Counselors-in-Training (1988-2003). This line of research focused on family of origin experiences of university students, counselors in-training, and male and female perpetrators of intimacy violence. This research resulted in a number of published papers and presentations at state, regional and national conferences.
