The Psychological Services Center

Mission

The PSC has a dual mission to provide services to the community as well as clinical training for doctoral level students. The PSC is staffed by students in the clinical psychology doctoral training program housed within the Department of Psychology and Philosophy at Sam Houston State University (SHSU). All students and clinical activities are closely supervised by licensed psychologists who are faculty or staff at SHSU.

The PSC strives to provide psychological services for individuals and families who are underserved in the Huntsville community and the greater east Texas region. Thus, all services are provided on a sliding scale. That is, clients are billed according to their income and other factors that influence their ability to pay for services.

The PSC provides psychotherapy for children, adolescents, adults, and families. We also provide psychological assessments including psychodiagnostic evaluations, psychoeducational assessments, and neuropsychological evaluations for children, adolescents, and adults.

The PSC provides forensic psychology services to various courts and local jurisdictions throughout east Texas.

The Psychological Services Center (PSC) is located at 1528 Avenue J in Huntsville, Texas on the campus of Sam Houston State University (SHSU).

To contact the PSC for information about our services or to make an appointment, please call 936-294-1210.
